Letter from Saratoga.

UNITED STATES HOTEL,
SARATOGA, SEPT. 27TH, 1885.

To The Citizen:

September goes out in a blaze of golden glory, and the perfect air and sunshine today in Saratoga seems to be making amends for the reign of the Democrats here during the past week. In fact it is to be strongly suspected that there are many hidden corners yet in the village which will require several days more to be well rid of the Democratic odor which has prevailed here for a week or more. If any one thinks this is an unjust reflection upon the great Democratic party, just let them attend

A DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION, such as was held here last week. Nothing but smoke, smoke, smoke! everywhere. Even in the Casino during the proceedings of the Convention, in spite of the chairman's oft repeated and pathetic pleadings, clouds of smoke kept rising to the roof. "Unperfected" New York Democracy puffed away at their cigars, stifling the speakers, and rendering the air noxious in the extreme. And such vile cigars, too! There was not a lady in the audience who was not disgusted forever with Democratic politics, and troubled with headaches for days after. When women come to vote, if nothing else drives them toward the Republican party, the vile cigars evaporized by the Democrats will.

THE COUNTY DEMOCRACY from New York City made quite an imposing parade as they came marching into town with their purple and gold trimmed banner, and purple badges with gold fringing to match. Every man seemed to realize his own importance as he marched by, to the inspiring music of the Sixty-ninth Regiment band. And every man carried a hand bag upon which he kept a close grip, for now that the Democrats are in, they will not let go upon what they have captured, and now that they are in, they repel with scorn the appellation of the "great unwashed," and it was whispered that every hand bag contained a box of paper collars and a fresh bottle of whiskey. The County Democracy marched up Broadway and down Broadway repeatedly, and upon each day, and the Democrats were wise in parading this "flower of their ranks" for effect and keeping the "heelers" in the background as much as possible.

TAMMAM AND IRVING HALL made no parade of their men. Probably they were busy at work in the interests of the Convention while their kid-gloved brethren went gayly up and down the streets. This may have been the reason that the County Democracy were so woefully "left" when they came to the ballot, they giving a solid vote for Hewitt, but receiving nothing but opposition from their ungrateful comrades who ate up the cheese while they were out in parade. As for Mr. Flower, who blossomed upon the Democratic ticket like a night-blooming cereus just as the hour struck midnight, receiving just one vote for governor, of course all good Republicans here are delighted to know that he has refused the second place, and consider the Democrats already virtually beaten in New York this fall.

It is impossible to think, or talk of anything but POLITICS here in Saratoga, for politics is in the very air. The ladies are as much interested as the lords of creation, and wear their badges according to their preference, either for the party or the man. General Carr's lady friends, and he has, like all brave soldiers, plenty of feminine admirers, attended the Republican Convention, wearing Carr badges, and they were much chagrined that he was not nominated for Governor. Nothing, probably, but General Carr's religion prevented his nomination.

Democratic fair ones, wore Hill badges and sat patiently through that long, tiresome evening at the Convention, when the opposition element to Hill used every pretext for gaining time to keep off the casting of any ballot that night, even succeeding in having the roll called four times, but all in vain, and, just at the ghostly hour of midnight Gov. Hill was nominated amidst thundering cheers from his adherents, and now the wise ones aver that he has not the ghost of a chance of being elected.

Be that as it may, it is amusing to see what boys the greatest of creation's lords will become at a political convention.

Among the notable men at the Convention was

GEN. DANIEL E. SICKLES, as handsome as ever, courtly and affable in demeanor, with a genial smile and warm hand-grasp for old comrades and friends, and moving about with an unequalled grace and ease upon his crutches. After his stormy and eventful career, General Sickles wears his well-earned laurels with dignified serenity, and turns gaze toward the evening of life, content to know that when the evening shadows fall at last his name will be forever enrolled among the honored heroes of his country.

GEN. SLOCUM was also the cynowho of many admiring eyes, and many sure recalled his proud career as second in command in the Army of the Potomac, marvelled why his party did not head their ticket with his name. As for being second in place, such honor had no favor in the eyes of the General, who repelled the mere idea with disdain. General Slocum is evidently well-content to rest upon his military laurels, as well he may be. At the Republican Convention

CORPORAL TANNER attracted much attention as a veteran of the war who had both legs shot away, and who yet walks around upon cork substitutes with the simple assistance of a small cane, so that no one who did not know of his misfortune would suspect it. And so the SUMMER IS ENDED in gay Saratoga. The band at the United States hotel gave its farewell concert upon Saturday morning and the familiar strains of the "Last Rose of Summer," and "Home Sweet Home" gave token that the parting hour had come at last. Many a bright eye glistened with tears and every guest, although undoubtedly glad to be at home once more, after the long summer vacation, will regretfully bid adieu to delightful Saratoga, and will treasure up its bright scenes with loving remembrance. In despite of a rather unpromising beginning, the season has not been an unprosperous one, and great things are expected of next year; for Saratoga must always remain, what she has always been, the Queen of watering places.

SOPHIE SPARKLE.

The Anti-License Remonstrance.

To The Citizen:

In your editorial columns of Sept. 12th an article appeared entitled the "Reform Club's Petition" in which some one denounced and belittled the efforts made by leading citizens of Bloomfield to restrict the number of licenses granted to liquor dealers. As the article referred to is not only opposed to the general tone of THE CITIZEN on the temperance question, but has caused adverse comment by several citizens whose good opinion is worth retaining, permit a brief reference to the remonstrance and the article in question.

1. It was not the "Reform Club's Petition." The plan was proposed at the Union Temperance meeting by one not a member of the Reform Club, who desired to see some practical work accomplished in which all good citizens could unite, it having been tried with success years since under the prompting of Rev. Geo. Duffield. Members of the Reform Club united with non-members to carry out the details, and kindly consented to bring it before the magistrates at their session on the 8th inst.

2. The sneer of "Law and Order" at the Reform Club, on page one of THE CITIZEN of Sept. 12th is undeserved. The writer heard members of the club demur as to the propriety of their aiding to place it before the court, lest men "of that ilk" should say just what "Law and Order" has said; but they acted from regard to the respect due to the numerous and influential signers of the memorial, in harmony with members of the L. and O. League.

3. The adverse censure of the writer of that article does not count a feather's weight against the fact that hundreds of the leading citizens and taxpayers of Bloomfield signed the remonstrance in question, and it was emphatically a Citizens' Protest against the extension of the liquor traffic in Bloomfield.

"The court," it was said, "was unable to comply with any such petition, and was about to proceed to consider the application without paying the slightest regard to it. At the instance of Mr. Collie, however, the court agreed to let the Bloomfield cases stand over till Friday, and give the petition such weight as it deserved. What that weight was, in their estimation, no bystander could doubt. It was infinitesimal."

Here we have the testimony of "a bystander" that a Judge sworn to execute the laws, and administer justice faithfully, scorned to pay the slightest regard to the wishes of taxpaying citizens from whose resources he obtains his living, and attributed an "infinitesimal" weight to their opposition to increase of the rum traffic in our town.

It must be understood that the memorials sent in, contained the names of hundreds of our best citizens without regard to party, and that many were absent who would have signed, and that not one of the districts was fully canvassed.

The court, it appears, preferred to listen to the application of fifty-five men (whose names will be found on page one of some number of CITIZEN), instead of ten times that number opposed to licensing. Perhaps it is well that they have betrayed their leanings, in this way, so that better and more reliable men may be elected to office hereafter, by the citizens of Bloomfield and of Essex County to State, as well as County offices.

The letter received by General Grant during his recent illness from the Sandwich Islands, addressed simply to "Gen. Grant, The United States," recalls an anecdote told of Benjamin Franklin, who at one time sent a communication to his friend, "Samuel Johnson, Great Britain." Not to be outdone, Johnson returned the compliment by directing his answer to "Benjamin Franklin, The World," which was duly delivered. It is also said of Dr. Boerhaave, the famous Dutch physician, that he once received a letter with the simple direction "Europe." Mr. P. T. Barnum, the famous showman, is frequently paid the compliment of receiving epistles addressed to "Mr. Barnum, America," and Mr. Beecher, of our own city, has also, I believe, been honored in a like manner. Such compliments may be paid, however, to only a few persons—with any degree of safety.

KINDNESS TO ANIMALS.—Mr. H. Roberts, of Sea View, is the owner of a patent method of shoeing horses which is very highly spoken of by all who have seen it. It consists in raising the heel with strips of leather, while stones are prevented from fixing in the hoof by an arrangement of india-rubber, and it is claimed for this arrangement that the concussion to the hoof is lessened and that there is a consequent ease to the animal in its work. The initial cost is said to be rather higher than the ordinary method, but in the long run the new and improved method will probably cost much about the same as the old plan.—English Paper.

HOUSEKEEPERS

TAKE NOTICE!

A patent Knife for paring and slicing potatoes, apples, turnips, &c., will be our next great attraction. As a rule, in paring and cutting the potatoes, the paring and slicing knife is thrown away. As none of us can afford to have our means wasted, anything which proves an economical naturally contains more than ordinary interest. Not only is the PARING AND SLICING KNIFE a great saver, it also is the only perfect arrangement in the world for slicing the Saratoga Chips, now so popular. On SATURDAY, Sept. 26th, and following week, the

will be presented to all purchasers of Tea and Coffee. Remember, you receive your check as usual, nothing whatever being charged for the Knife. It is given as a Souvenir. As it is customary in our store to oblige the purchasers to buy 1 pound of Tea or 2 pounds of Coffee in order to obtain the present (with which they give you no decided) the advantage of buying from us is so decided as to require no further explanation.

DIRECTIONS FOR USING THE

Paring and Slicing Knife.
To pare potatoes fast take a potato in your hand and place the thumb against the end, reach back as far as is easy, keep the knife flat on the potato, bend down, roll the potato over to the left; finish up the ends last. To slice, cut straight across, and not let the knife follow the shape of the end of the potato.

On SATURDAY, Sept. 26th, commencing at 3 P. M., and continue until midnight, the patience of the knife will be present and will give an exhibition, displaying the many valuable services in which the knife can be utilized.
